

Office of Marketing and Public Information
Bob Burchette, 336-334-4822, Ext. 2566
Coretta Montague 336-334-4822, Ext. 2487

Guilford Technical Community College
Jamestown, N. C. 27282

Contact: ROBurchette@gtcc.edu
(Released 9/28/09)

ENGLISH TEACHER AND LIBRARIAN
BRING JACK TALES TO LIFE ON STAGE

GREENSBORO – “Go Beyond the Beanstalk When Jack Meets the Dragon” will be presented at 10:30 a.m. and at 2:30 p.m. Saturday (Oct. 3) at the Greensboro Historical Museum, 130 Summit Avenue.

Tickets are $5 for this show for all ages. Tickets may be reserved by calling 373-2043. The show runs about an hour and 15 minutes.

Two Greensboro authors, Lynn Salsi and James Young, combined their talents to bring the “Jack Tales to life through storytelling, art and music.”

Salsi, an adjunct English instructor at Guilford Technical Community College, is an author of 18 books, including the acclaimed “The Life and Times of Ray Hicks of the Jack Tales.” Young, manager of Greensboro’s Main Branch library, is author and/or illustrator of 24 books.

Young also is a musician, and plays with the Nutbush Ramblers.

Salsi .said, “This show is all about North Carolina culture, tradition and, of course, Appalachian history. The show is part of preserving the culture of Appalachian America, and includes Appalachian music and singing.”

Salsi and Young did the first performance of the play Sept. 28 at the Alleghany Public Library in Sparta.

###