SIX SHORT PLAYS BY DAVID IVES SCHEDULED FOR GTCC THEATER

JAMESTOWN – The winter presentation for the Guilford Technical Community College Fine Arts Theatre will be six short and funny plays by David Ives at 8 p.m. Feb. 17-20 and Feb. 24-27.

Performances will be in the Fine Arts Theatre in the Koury Hospitality Careers Center on the Jamestown campus. Tickets are $12 for the general public; $10 for senior citizens (age 60 and older); and $7 for students. Call 334-4822, Ext. 2496.

The show is “All in the Timing,” which will be directed by Michael Kamtman.

“Sure Thing” involves two young people who get to relive brief periods of time that allow them to say things over in a better way. “Variations on the Death of Trotsky” whose various ways the Russian revolutionary ends up with an axe in his head.

There also will be three monkeys writing Hamlet; and a fake linguist inventing the Universal Language.

“This is funny stuff and there is some adult language,” said Bill Lewis, artistic director of the theater and also director of the college’s drama program.

Ives most popular book of plays is “All in the Timing.” That series of comedies originated as an evening of one-act comedies that premiered at New York’s Primary Stages Theater in 1993. The Chicago native’s “All in the Timing” was moved to the larger John Houseman Theater in New York and ran for 606 performances and made him an award-winning writer.
